Information on higher education entrance eligibility

The higher education entrance eligibility refers to the document that you are required to have to commence university studies in your home country. The name of this document varies from country to country. Common names include “high school diploma” or “school leaving certificate.”

Date of higher education entrance eligibility*

31.03.2013

Type of higher education entrance eligibility*

Abroad—higher education entrance qualification from abroad

Please indicate the type of higher education entrance eligibility you have obtained.

Please note that you are only able to study business engineering and socioeconomics at Universität Hamburg with a polytechnic university entrance qualification (completed, incl. the practical component). For all other courses of study the entrance qualification from a polytechnic university is not valid and enrollment is not possible.

If you have passed the entrance examination for the Department of Socioeconomics, please select § 38 Eingangsprüfung oder Aufnahmeprüfung am FB Sozialökonomie (§ 38 placement test or entrance examination for the Department of Socioeconomics) here.

A university degree completed in Germany also counts as higher education entrance eligibility. In this case, select Sonstige Studienberechtigung (Other eligibility) and enter the date and grade on your final record.

If none of the options listed here apply to you, please select Sonstige Studienberechtigung/Externenprüfung (allgemeine Hochschulreife) (Other eligibility to study / external examination (general university entrance qualification)).

Country of higher education entrance eligibility*
